Is Solar Right For My Home?

Solar panels offer homeowners cleaner, cheaper energy. If you are debating whether solar is right for your home, you may be wondering if you have to live in a sunny, warm climate in order to see significant savings with solar power. As it turns out, solar is a smart investment whether you're soaking up the sun in California or paying through the nose for electricity in the Northeast.

There are a variety of incentives and rebates offered for homeowners switching to solar power. These are available at federal, state and local levels, but availability varies depending on your region. These incentives can reward residents with significant cost savings to help with solar project financing.

Several companies also offer a program that gives homeowners solar panels at no cost - the panels are installed and you pay a lower cost for the generated electricity—anywhere from 20 to 30 percent less than electric utility cost.

If you're interested in learning more about solar and how much savings you can expect, you can get a free assessment of your home and see how much less you'll pay with solar.

In August of 2019, Lower Milford said goodbye to Ms. Margo S. Wiener, Esquire, as she begins her well-earned retirement from Zoning Hearing Board Solicitor. Margo's time with the Township started back in 1988. During her 31 years of service, she has always acted fiercely in the best interest of the Township. We are grateful to have had Margo work with us for all these years. She leaves the ZHB in the hands of colleague Jeffrey S. Fleischaker. A warm welcome to Jeffrey and a happy retirement to Margo!
